LITERATURE REVIEW

Psycholinguistics is the study of the mental aspect of language and speech. it's primarily concerned with the ways in which language is represented and processed in the brain. According to Filed, John. " Psycholinguistics explores the relationship between the human mind and language. It treats the language user as an individual rather than a representative of society -but an individual whose linguistics performance is determined by the strengths and limitations of the mental apparatus which we all share”

Morphophonemic is the study of the relationship between morphology and phonology, according to Lai, Lam Nguyem. “Morphophonemics, a branch of morphology, deals with the variation in the forms of morphemes because of phonetic factor.”

In the morphophonemics there is a type one of them is addition, addition have three type there are: Prothesis, epenthesis and paragoge, in this research will be focused on the paragoge.

Paragoge is the additionan letter in the end of word, according to Crowley, Terry. (1997) “paragoge is the addition of sound to the end of word. Often is due to nativization.” And according to A. Leverkuhn “ paragoge is the addition of a letter or syllable to the end of a word. The word comes from Greek para, which means beyond, and goge, which means carrying. This term is generally applied to various kinds of vowel or consonant additions that are not true suffixes, but generally decorative additions meant to add emphasis, but that do not change the common meaning of the word.”
